*Defender and Calvary students are asked to make 2-3 commonplace entries per week (these entries could count as copywork for the day in their home studies). If students already have a commonplace journal, they can continue to use the one they already have. The journal linked above is nice; it has TOC pages, and all the pages are already numbered, as well as a place to write the date. This journal is big enough that students can use this for all their school subjects, not just Arete or Lux. Please refer to the Scale How School video about how to keep a commonplace journal.

The student needs to label books and materials with his or her last name.
